A Complete Portfolio

Whether you pack mild (peas, corn, pet food), moderate (carrots, green beans, tuna, chicken soup) or aggressive (salsa, soya, sauerkraut) foods, valPure next generation food can coatings have been designed to provide maximum protection for both the packed products and the metal can throughout the processes of application, fabrication and packing.

New Technologies

Sherwin-Williams offers coating systems that meet food can requirements. Sherwin-Williams' next generation polyester technology has improved upon the performance capabilities of other polyesters and meets the performance requirement of hard to hold types of foods, which has not been possible in the past.

Sherwin-Williams' newest technology platform, valPure V70, is a non-BPA solution with epoxy-like performance. Currently available are valPure V70 coatings for the exterior of DRD bodies and ends, easy open ends (EOE), and the interior of D&I food cans.
